Reviews

This pdf is indeed gripping and interesting. It is definitely simplistic but shocks within the 50 percent of your book. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

LAP Lambert Academic Publishing Jan 2015, 2015. Taschenbuch. Book Condition: Neu. 220x150x6 mm. Neuware - Neuroendocrine Cell Hyperplasia of Infancy (NEHI) is a rare diffuse lung disease, providing diagnostic and prognostic difficulties due to heterogeneous presentations and unknown etiology. Confirmed cases of NEHI show an increased count of neuroendocrine cells in airway walls upon completion of a lung biopsy. These cells are associated with branch morphogenesis during fetal growth, which leads our hypothesis that NEHI symptoms are correlated with changes in infant airway tree structure. Using volumetric computed tomography scans, patient airway trees are edited to establish a skeletonized form. Image registration techniques align both a control and diseased group into a standard coordinate frame. Principle Component Analysis provides information about the greatest axes of variation, leading to a set of parameters that classify NEHI from the control group. We found that the extent of airway tree deformation in these given axes was correlated with airway functionality. These results suggest that statistical shape models of the NEHI lung show promise for alternative disease diagnostics and stratification. 100 pp. Englisch.
