Not illustrated. 1904 Excerpt: . . . Department of Plain Sewing. All women should have a knowledge of plain sewing, and in order to afford the opportunity for this training to as great a number as possible, this course is offered in connection with the regular College course. The student is taught hand and machine sewing, mending, cutting and fitting of garments, and is required to spend two consecutive periods per week in the classroom. All materials are furnished by the student. Technical Dressmaking and Millinery. Special attention is given to those who wish to master the art of either Dressmaking or Millinery, and the work is arranged to meet the needs of those who wish to become professionals in either subject. Dressmaking. The student is required to spend four hours daily in the classroom except Monday. They are taught to take measurements, draft patterns, cut, fit, design, and make costumes. Each student must make a lined waist and skirt for herself, furnishing all materials, before doing any work to order. In the technical classes during the last term, students are required to make dresses to order, for patrons who furnish the materials. This makes the work of the department thoroughly practical. The department is furnished with charts, lap boards, frame boards, pressing boards, sewing machines, dress forms, fitting pedestals, and everything needed for best work. First Term. --Subjects of Instruction: Implements and appliances used in dressmaking; color and choice of materials; taking measurements; drafting skirt patterns; cutting and making lined...
